TERSELY TOLD.

On account of the very inclement weather the weekly band concert by Myers band, which was to have been given last night, was postponed.

Hon. W. H. Brett, Jr., clerk of the circuit court of Holmes county, was in the city yesterday, and spent the day listening to the arguments in the Williams murder case.

Paul Carter, private secretary of Congressman Lamar, and Emmet Wilson, an attorney, both of Marianna, were in the city yesterday to hear the arguments in the Williams murder case.

Southern Hotel Arrivals: J. F. Barnett, St. Louis; W. H. Brett, Jr., Bonham; L. C. Fisher, Milton; Lloyd A. McDavid, Florida; J. A. J. Hathaway, Bonham; J. H. Lamb, Spring Hill, Fla.

Rev. and Mrs. Fred Jones, who have been spending the past six weeks in Georgia and South Carolina, have returned to the city, and Rev. Mr. Jones will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Eleven defendants were before the recorder in the police court yesterday morning. Of this number four cases were continued, one bond order was forfeited, one defendant discharged and two defendants given thirty days in jail. Fines imposed amounted to $121.

THE DREAMERS.

By Making Their Visions Practical They Achieved Success.

If Columbus had not dreamed of continents on the other side of the ocean to discover the lands that were known; if Cyrus W. Field had not dreamed of a cable for communicating across the ocean; if Professor Alexander G. Bell had not dreamed of the possibilities of talking across continents by the telephone; if Elias Howe had not dreamed that there was an easier way for women to do their sewing; if Robert Fulton had not dreamed that the Clermont could sail up the Hudson, although the world doubted and ridiculed him; if all the people who have given the world a lift by emancipating it from drudgery through their dreaming and discovery of a thousand ameliorating appliances and inventions, civilization would be in its infancy today.

Oh, how much we owe to the dreamers! But all these people made their dreams practical. They reduced them to realities before they were of any use. Go on dreaming, go on building for air castles, let the imagination have free wings to soar into the unknown, but come back with something tangible. Make your dreams practical realities or they will be worthless.—Gordon Sweet Marden in Success Magazine.

STEVEDORES HAD BIG CELEBRATION

Thirty-Sixth Anniversary of S. B. A. No. 1. Celebrated Last Night and Was Largely Attended.

LARGE NUMBER OF PERSONS WERE PRESENT AND SOME EXCELLENT ADDRESSES DELIVERED—REFRESHMENTS SERVED.

The thirty-sixth anniversary of Stevedores' Benevolent Association, No. 1, the oldest labor organization in Florida, and one of the oldest in the south, was celebrated last night, when a smoker was given in the hall of the organization. The occasion was a most enjoyable one, and was attended by a large number of members. There were only a few invited guests present, as the event was for the members alone.

A number of short addresses were delivered during the course of the evening. Among the speakers were President Thos. Johnson; John O'Brien, chairman of the entertainment committee; Hon. T. E. Welles, Mike O'Leary, W. L. Bell, C. F. Schad, A. S. Cox and Percy S. Hayes.

Thos. Johnson, John O'Brien, as master of ceremonies presided, and after chowder, sandwiches and other refreshments had been served, introduced to the members, their president, Thos. Johnson. He spoke briefly, but his talk was one which was greatly appreciated. He told of the progress of the organization, especially during the past six years, and that during this period the association had been cleared of all debt, and was now in a most excellent financial condition. Mr. Johnson's remarks were greeted with applause.

Mr. Johnson's popularity among the members of this organization, made his address very interesting to them. He complimented the members upon the manner in which all had acted, and the respect which the association commanded among the citizens of the city.

Hon. T. E. Welles, Chairman O'Brien then introduced Hon. T. E. Welles. In doing so he paid that gentleman a compliment, as he did all others. Mr. Welles opened his talk by stating that at one time he had been a member of No. 1, and he had always been proud of this fact; that when he received the invitation to be present at the anniversary he felt proud of the honor. He complimented the members of the association for the way in which they conducted their business, for their conservative stand upon all questions, and said that the members should be proud of the respect which they commanded. Labor and capital should work together, as neither can exist without the other, and he wished to congratulate No. 1 upon having at its helm conservative men.

Mike O'Leary was the next to be introduced. Every one present knew that gentleman, and the rounds of applause given attested to his popularity. He said that there were only three of the founders of No. 1 surviving, they being David Tobin, John Baker and himself. He related how eighteen men had met in 1868 and formed the association, and he was proud that he was one of the organizers. He viewed with pride the advancement of the organization during the past years, and hoped that it would continue to grow in strength and prosperity.

When he finished his talk Mr. O'Leary was given three cheers.

HEART RIGHT

When He Quit Coffee.

Life Insurance Companies will not insure a man suffering from heart trouble. The reason is obvious. This is a serious matter to the husband or father who is solicitous for the future of his dear ones. Often the heart trouble is caused by an unexpected thing and can be corrected if taken in time and properly treated. A man in Colorado writes:

"I was a great coffee drinker for many years, and was not aware of the injurious effects of the habit till I became a practical invalid, suffering from heart trouble, indigestion and nervousness to an extent that made me wretchedly miserable myself and a nuisance to those who witnessed my sufferings."

"I continued to drink coffee, however, not suspecting that it was the cause of my ill-health, till, on applying for life insurance I was rejected on account of the trouble with my heart. Then I became alarmed. I found that leaving off coffee helped me quickly, so I quit it altogether and having been attracted by the advertisements of Postum Food Coffee I began its use."

"The change in my condition was remarkable, and it was not long till I was completely cured. All my ailments vanished. My digestion was completely restored, my nervousness disappeared, and, most important of all, my heart steadied down and became normal, and on a second examination I was accepted by the life insurance company. Quitting Coffee and using Postum worked the cure. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich."

There's a reason, and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville" in each pkg.

years, was next called upon by Chairman O'Brien, and in doing so the chairman paid him a high compliment. Mr. Bell stated that he was not a speaker, but that he felt honored by having received an invitation. He had always worked No. 1 men, and had never had the least trouble or complaint to make with the service rendered.

C. Fred Schad, Marshal Schad was the next to be called for, and gave the assembled members a short talk, in which he stated that he was something upon the order of Mr. Bell, could not deliver an address, but desired to say that he had always, not only in his official capacity, but in private life, endeavored to assist in every manner possible, the members of the organization, and that he hoped when the next celebration occurred he would have the good fortune to receive an invitation to be present, whether or not he was an officer or engaged in another pursuit.

A. S. Cox, stevedore and wharfmaster of the L. & N., was then introduced. He made an excellent talk to the men, all of whom appreciated the same. He said that not only he, but his company, was well pleased with the manner in which the ships were loaded, and that there had never been any differences but which had been agreeably settled. He said the association was conservative and wanted nothing but what was due the members, and he was pleased to state that the service they rendered was a credit to the members of No. 1. He also complimented the members of the Cotton Srewnmen's Association.

Two Old Members. David Tobin and John Baker, two of the three survivors of the association when it was first formed, were not present, but letters were read explaining their absence. These two with Mr. O'Leary are the only ones left who organized No. 1, 36 years ago.

Chairman O'Brien spoke of this fact in a feeling manner, stating that he was sorry that the oldest members could not be present, and hoped they would be present at the next celebration.

Percy S. Hayes, of The Journal, was called for. He spoke for the press and assured the association of the hearty support of the paper which he represented, knowing the association to be conservative in every respect. As president of Typographical Union, No. 293, he thanked the members of the association for their assistance in times past when the printers were in need of help.

Chairman O'Brien conducted the proceedings in an excellent manner. He complimented every speaker and his introductory remarks caused every one to listen with interest.

The smoker itself was very enjoyable. The lunch was served in an excellent manner, and everyone present spent a most pleasant evening.

Another prominent city official in attendance was Chief W. R. Bicker, of the Pensacola fire department.

BRAVE DECATUR.

The Story of His Pledge Attack on a Tripolitan Vessel.

Gardner W. Allen in his book, "Our Navy and the Barbary Corsairs," retells the old story of how Commodore Stephen Decatur, then a lieutenant in the United States navy, attacked a Tripolitan vessel. The incident occurred in 1804, when Probie was lying off Tripoli. Young Decatur had been told that the captain of this vessel had treacherously murdered his brother, John Decatur, after he had surrendered to him. Mr. Allen writes: "He ran alongside and at once boarded with Macdonough and the remnant of his crew. Decatur singled out the captain, a man of great size and strength, and attacked him furiously. The Tripolitan made a thrust with his boarding pike, and in attempting to parry the blow Decatur's cutlass was broken off at the hilt, leaving him for the moment unarmed. Another thrust of the pike wounded him in the arm. Decatur seized the weapon, wrenched it away and grappled with his antagonist. After a short struggle they fell to the deck, with Decatur on top."

"Meanwhile the two crews were fighting furiously about their leaders, and a Tripolitan aimed a blow at Decatur's head with his scimitar, when a seaman named Daniel Frazier, having both arms disabled by wounds, interposed his head and received the blow, which laid open the scalp. The Tripolitan captain, being more powerful than Decatur, soon turned him underneath and, holding him down with his left hand, drew a knife and was about to plunge it into his breast."

"Decatur seized the uplifted arm with his left hand, while he managed to get his right into his pocket, where he had a pistol. Giving it the proper direction, he fired through the pocket. The giant relaxed his hold and fell dead. Having lost seventeen killed, including their leader, the seven surviving Tripolitans, four of whom were wounded, soon gave up the fight."

DREDGE CAUCUS REACHES PORT

Fine Vessel, In Command of Capt. Frank Dunn, Is Moored at Wharf.

The dredge Caucus, constructed specially for Pensacola harbor, and attached to the engineering department of the army, reached port yesterday shortly after the noon hour. When she was sighted coming up the harbor, after being out for about ten days from New York, she was given a noisy but welcome greeting, nearly every tug boat in the harbor joining in making the arrival of the stranger known to the city.

The Caucus, with her loud whistle responded to each vessel and for the course of ten minutes those along the water front could hear nothing but the blasts from the boats.

The Caucus is in command of Capt. Frank M. Dunn, and the crew is composed mostly of Pensacolians. She is a well built and staunch vessel, and is capable of doing a large amount of work. Her suction pipes are exceptionally large, and she can load down to her full capacity while at work in less than one hour.

While the vessel is not built of steel, she is nevertheless protected at points where it is necessary.

The Caucus, as all dredges, is equipped with powerful engines, not only for propelling, but for suction, where great power is necessary. She was built by the James Kelly Repair and Supply Co., of New York, to whom the bid was awarded by the government.

The Caucus is to be used on Pensacola bar as long as her services are necessary, and later she may go to other Florida ports to work.

The vessel is of 250 tons net, measures 170 feet in length, 32 feet in breadth and draws about nine feet of water. Her crew consists of about thirty-five men.

THAT CLEVER TOURIST CAP.

Quite a novelty, and a useful one at that, is the steamer cap illustrated. The design lends itself exceedingly well to auto, driving and all outdoor purposes. The original one is in a silky gray mohair, with almost innumerable rows of stitching. The crown is very broad and low, following the familiar Tam O'Shanter outlines. The trim is stiffened with feather-bone cordings, these caught in between the rows of stitching.

KNOW WHERE TO GET THE NEWS

THE JOURNAL'S TELEPHONE WAS KEPT EXCEEDINGLY BUSY LAST NIGHT.

Everybody knows where to go to get the news.

Until late into last night the Journal telephone kept up an almost incessant ringing and nineteen out of every twenty calls were this: "Can you tell me what he verdict in the Williams case was?"

We, The Journal, could. It had a special reporter in the court room all during the trial of the celebrated case, it knew all about every feature almost as soon as it became history, and it freely gave the information desired. Some papers would not have done this but would have curtly advised the inquirer to wait and buy a copy of the paper this morning.

Pensacolians may always know where to obtain reliable information. The Journal can give it. The Journal's entire force is the greatest information source in the city. This is what the force is paid for. That's what we're here for.
